Marshall Community Credit Union Honors the Class of 2020

Credit Unions are known for making a difference in our members' lives through their finances and supporting the communities that we serve. Since the disruption of everyone's lives with COVID19, credit unions have not only stepped up to support their member's financial needs, but continue to find creative ways to serve their communities while social distancing.

A group of individuals from Kansas, Minnesota, Michigan and Georgia have joined together to create the #weCUgrads challenge with the idea of celebrating 2020 graduates through social media. "A credit union in Georgia first came up with the hashtag and the challenge, and with our strong partnership with area schools, and mission to provide financial education, it made sense that we also participate in the initiative" said MCCU Financial Education Coordinator, Andrea Tucker. MCCU is encouraging other area credit unions to join in the challenge as well. Simply use the #weCUgrads during the week of May 4th to show support to graduates who are missing out on their final chapter of high school.

The challenge is an opportunity for credit unions to help shine the spotlight back on graduating seniors and all that they have accomplished over the years. By joining together in this weeklong social media campaign, we will extend our heartfelt congratulations by saying "we see you graduates!"
