Marshall Community Credit Union Announces Corrie Rozell as Chief Executive Officer

The Marshall Community Credit Union (MCCU) Board of Directors is pleased to announce the selection of Corrie Rozell as Chief Executive Officer (CEO). Rozell, who has been serving as Interim CEO since January, will begin serving as the permanent CEO of the organization effective immediately.

Rozell started her career with MCCU as a teller in 2008. Since then, she has worked her way up through the organization and has overseen the areas of branch operations, marketing, financial education outreach and community partnerships. She is thrilled to be taking on her new role. "I see the potential we have as an organization to continue to increase our employee and member satisfaction, which in turn will increase our overall success as a credit union. I am very optimistic about the future of MCCU!" stated Rozell.

Rozell has a personal connection and commitment to the communities that MCCU serves. "These people are my friends, family, and neighbors. I personally interact with them on a daily basis and I'm committed to serving them in the best way possible," commented Rozell. "MCCU's success equals the success of our members and our communities. It is an honor to have a pivotal role in an organization that has that kind of impact."

Rozell is graduate of Marshall High School and Western Michigan University. In 2017, she graduated from CUNA Management School, a three-year program at the University of Wisconsin, where she received the industry's Certified Credit Union Executive designation. Rozell currently resides in Marshall with her husband, Eric, and daughter, Olida (Ollie). When she's not actively involved in giving back to the community, she can be found playing volleyball, spending time outdoors at her family's cabin, hunting, kayaking, doing puzzles and fueling her passion for viewing and creating art.

“After an in-depth search, the board has unanimously approved Corrie Rozell to be MCCU’s new CEO,” stated MCCU chairperson Jay Larson. “Her intelligence, people skills and passion for excellence will continue to make certain that MCCU remains the premier financial institution in the areas we serve. Please welcome her as she accepts this new challenge.”

“Corrie has a passion for pursuing the credit union mission of people helping people,” Larson continued. “As a Board, we appreciate her commitment to exemplary member service, active staff development, and integral involvement in community outreach. We are confident that with her experience and commitment, MCCU will continue to thrive under her leadership.”
